JUDCon:2010

Join us for the inaugural JUDCon…
the conference by developers, for developers.

When: June 21, 2010

Where: Boston, Massachusetts

Why: Because developers need to get their hands dirty in code.

Cost: JUDCon is FREE but attendance is capped at 225. So register early!

Collaborate: Go to the website to join in the discussions about JUDCon.

What is JUDCon?

JUDCon is an event by developers, for developers. Presentations will include a range of deep technical dives into JBoss Community projects and related technical topics of developer interest. The inaugural JUDCon will be a one day event packed with valuable sessions and will run into the early hours of the following day. For your convenience, JUDCon is the day before JBoss World and shares the same venue. In the future, look for stand-alone, multi-day events.

Agenda

There will be three tracks comprised of 50-minute sessions. Two tracks will consist of presentations by internal JBoss developers about JBoss AS 5/6 and JBoss Cloud/Portal, and a third "Community Track" of presentations by external developers and community partners will be added in the near future. Nominations for Community Track presentations can be proposed in the JUDCon Community where a subsequent poll will be conducted to select the winners. There will also be two HackFest tracks that will run through the evening until early the next morning.

Schedule

Check out the website for a brief overview of the presentations.

Registration

Register online now! Check-in and at-the door registration will be June 21st from 8:30 AM until noon. Advance website registrants will have priority, but developers may also register at the door after 10 AM for any unclaimed slots so please make sure you check in on time!

Venue

JUDCon is at the same venue as Red Hat Summit/JBoss World. You'll receive a flow-up email when you register with information about hotel, and other details.

Want Swag?

What's an event without swag? Attendees will also walk away with cool JUDCon t-shirts.
